

Housekeeping for Success

By Rene Bastarache, CI

This script focuses on the benefits of organizing your home for success. What message are you sending to the universe? Are you sending the message that you have too much already or that you're open and prepared for success?

Script Begins Here:

One of the main traits of the subconscious mind is that you'll always attract more of what you focus on... What are you focusing on where it comes to your living conditions right now?...

Is your home organized?... What does the condition of your home presently tell the universe? ... Does it show that you are ready to receive more and that you appreciate what you have... or does it show that you have too much already and cannot take care of it...

You now have a strong desire to organize your home... You do this by improving your living conditions... by putting things away... eliminating clutter and organizing your belongings...

It makes you feel a sense of accomplishment to organize your home... It makes you feel more confident and proud of where you live... It feels more like a place you'd rather be, than a place to escape from... Think of what it would take to make your home more of a pleasant and organized place...

An organized home is a happier and more pleasant home... Since you always attract what you focus on... you'll be attracting more happiness and pleasure into your life...

By eliminating clutter, you're creating room to attract more things... more of what you desire... If you don't have room to put anything away then how could you expect to receive more...

You cannot pour any more liquid into a “full” cup... In order to receive more, there must be space... and you’re now creating more space where you live through your organizing efforts...

As you organize and improve your home... you also create expectancy that you’ll receive more of what you focusing on... Part of creating expectancy is having the space to receive...

Congratulations for having a more organized and abundant life...
